Brimi (Ellef Carl Linneaus Brimi 1876-1925), who was born in Eau Claire, Wisconsin, of Sever and Lina Brimi. Graduating from Rush Medical College in 1897, he completed his internship at Norwegian-American Hospital in Chicago. Brimi later moved to North Dakota becoming an early resident of Cooperstown in Griggs County and practicing as an allopathic physician.

The first part of the notebook contains notes on lectures on Therapeutics from Professor Daniel R. Brower. Topics range from disinfectants, ulcers, obesity, iodides, food for diabetics and "peculiar bitters". The text includes diagnostic descriptions of various kinds for women, children and men and the treatment performed by the medical staff. A woman came to the hospital and was operated on for tubercular peritonitis, and another for the removal of an interstitial fibrosis in the pelvic area. A 47 year old woman in good health complained of weakness in the interscapular region of the upper torso. The doctor wrote, "He have reason to suspect pernicious anaemia", today known as an immune deficiency, caused by lack of Vitamin B 12. Numerous other examples follow for children and men alike.

Dr. Daniel Roberts Brower (1840-1909) was a specialist in mental and nervous diseases and became a professor of the same at Rush Medical College after moving to Chicago from Pennsylvania. He was president of the State Medical Society and editor of the Chicago Medical Journal.

The second section of the surgical notebook is entitled "operative surgery" and appears to be notes made after visiting different patients in hospital. Another section is genitourinary surgery, and surgery of the chest. Patients were suffering from a variety of ailments, cancers, fractures, cysts, hydrocele, tuberculosis, and so on. These notes are interspersed with class lecture notes much of which is from "Professor Senn" (as follows)- others are Prof. Hamilton, William L. Belfield (who was President of the Chicago Urological Society) and Prof. Edwin Klebs.

"Dr. Nicholas Senn was born in Switzerland on October 31, 1844. When he was eight years old, his family emigrated to the United States and settled in Ashford, Wisconsin. Dr. Senn graduated from Chicago Medical College in 1868, served a residency at Cook County Hospital, and later moved to Milwaukee. There he practiced medicine by day and spent most evenings in a private laboratory performing experiments. He studied gastrointestinal lesions and bone tuberculosis. He is credited with pioneering work on the pancreas and the intestinal tract, and he was among the first to use the then unpredictable x-rays in the treatment of leukemia. The genesis of today's high-tech sterile operating suites could, without too much exaggeration, be credited to Dr. Senn, also. His many experiments relating to the reason for infection resulting from surgery (that the bacteria entered the wound from the hands of the surgeons rather than that infection was due to the individual propensity of the patient) led to surgical improvements practiced by all surgeons."

In the late 1870's, Dr. Senn returned to Europe and was awarded a second M.D. from the University of Munich. In 1884 he was appointed professor of surgery at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Chicago. Six years later he became professor of surgery and surgical pathology at Rush Medical College, and in 1891 he became head of the department of surgery at Rush. In addition, he was a professor of surgery at the Chicago Polyclinic and a lecturer on military surgery at the University of Chicago. He was awarded a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin in 1897." [Senn High School history online].

Another of the lecturing physicians was Dr. Edwin Klebs who was Theodor Albrecht Edwin Klebs (1834–1913) a German-Swiss pathologist. He is mainly known for his work on infectious diseases. His works paved the way for the beginning of modern bacteriology, and inspired Louis Pasteur and Robert Koch. He was the first to identify a bacterium that causes diphtheria, which was called Klebs–Loeffler bacterium. Mostly based in Switzerland, Klebs taught at Rush Medical College in Chicago from 1896 to 1900 .

These lectures all would have been given at Rush Medical College which is the medical school of Rush University, located two miles west of Chicago. (866)

AMHERST, MASSACHUSETTS PHYSICIAN, DICKINSON RELATED

2. Coles, Dr. Chester. Book of Medical Accounts. 1822-1834. Accounts Continued By One of His Sons, 1842-1864. Amherst, Massachusetts. Sold

Tall narrow ledger. 295 x 1`60 mm., [15 x ½ x 6 ½ inches]. Manuscript in ink in a legible hand. 144 pp., plus few loose receipts. Contemporary reverse calf , some signatures separating. Cover and tip wear, age toning to the paper stock.

Dr. Chester Cowles (1770-1842) practiced medicine in the Amherst, Massachusetts, area. Alice Morehouse Walker wrote in 1905 in an essay entitled "Early Amherst Doctors": "Dr. Chester Cowles, the son of Oliver ...after serving his apprenticeship in neighboring towns had returned to his native place to practice his skill upon his relatives and neighbors and lived in the house now occupied by Sumner Dickinson. His brother, Dr. Rufus, a graduate of Dartmouth, had his home and office in the old house in Cowles Lane, and kept a little apothecary shop..."

The first half of the accounts show visits and medicines prescribed: cathartics, emetics, extracting teeth, antimony, and so on. They are intermixed with farm and personal expenses. The next part of the book was continued in a different hand, probably by one of Chester Cowles's sons; William, Lucius, Rufus, Chester, or Levi. These contain farm, cattle, and team accounts, and numerous rental accounts. It is an interesting example of making income from numerous jobs and services. The ledger shows that Coles purchased food stuff and cloth from local women of Amherst as well as attending to their medical needs. He also sold alcohol, prescriptions drugs, and bought meat, fire wood, and other necessities from local men.

Local women who cited in the book include, Mary Dickenson, Theodora Eastman, Sarah Norton who purchased a quart of gin, Susanah Taylor, and Mrs. Crain to name a few.

Although unsigned, Chester Cowles's name is derived from a note in the front of the book: "Amherst March 1, 1841. Things I have bought for my daughter Sarah I. Cowles." It is recorded that Sarah Irene Cowles was born in 1821, in Amherst, of Chester and Mary (Wade) Cowles. Dr. Cowles's parents were Oliver and Irene (Dickinson) Cowles.

Many Dickinson names appear in this book, including; Eli, Erastus, Joseph, Abner, Roswell, Levi, Henry, Job, and Mary. Poet Emily Dickinson (1830-1886) also lived in Amherst, and although these are not her close relatives, they are very likely related. The Dickinsons were very numerous and prominent in Amherst and Samuel Fowler Dickinson, Emily's grandfather, took part in the founding of Amherst College as did Rufus Cowles, brother of Chester. There were several intermarriages between the two families in different generations. (861)

3. Hamlin, Philo, M. D. Five (5) Account Books of Philo Hamlin, M.D. 1828-1874. Mifflintown, Juniata, Pennsylvania. $ 2,500.00

Five volumes, four in folio, one in 4to format. 390 x 160 mm., [15 ½ x 6 ½ inches] and 310 x 190 mm., [12 ¾ x 7 ¾ inches]. Combined total of 1258 manuscript pages. Written in ink, in generally legible hand.

(I) Ledger 1828 – 1840. 416 pp. plus and alphabetical index and eight scraps/receipts.

(II) “Ledger A” 1829 - 1841. 352pp., plus 20-page small notebook, 4” x 6”.

(III) “Ledger B” 1836 - 1874. 190 pp. and alphabetical index, plus nine notes/receipts

(IV) Ledger 1839 - 1846. 158 pp. plus receipts and letter describing illness of wife who is near term

(V) Ledger 1846 - 1872. 108 pp. plus 5 scraps/receipts.

Each ledger bound in contemporary marbled boards, rubbed but sound.

A large archive of account books of Philo Hamlin, a physician, from the Mifflintown, Pennsylvania, area. Hamlin had a long career, hundreds of patients, including scores of women and girls. He also acted as an apothecary, making medicinal compounds and dispensing his own medicines.

A small notebook included with “Ledger A” shows the purchase of many medical compounds. The accounts contain the patient's name, the date, some brief medical shorthand, and the charge. Prescribed medicines instances of dressings and wound care, included cathartics, "Indian Panacea", syrups, emetics, and many other instances of dressing and wound care.

The first three ledgers are indexed and provide easy access to the accounts of the local women and men who sought his care. A look at the index for the letters A – C of the first ledger record the names, Mrs. Anthony, Widow Belford, Widow Brown, Widow Butler, Widow Belsome, Widow Blair, Miss Betsy Brant, Miss, Sally Cunningham, Mrs. Cruel, and Sally Conner and the list goes on and on.

Philo Hamlin was born September 30, 1800 in Sharon, Connecticut, son of Darling and Elizabeth (Doty) Hamlin. Hamlin moved from Connecticut to Mifflintown, Pennsylvania, to study medicine with his uncle Ezra Doty. He later graduated from Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. Philo Hamlin and Rebecca North were married in 1829 by John Hutchinson, Presbyterian pastor, in Mifflintown. He had five children by her and eight by his second wife, Martha Connor. He practiced medicine in Mifflintown for many years and died there January 28, 1879.

What is interesting about this archive is that it contains information not only on Dr. Hamlin's medical practice and his patients, but the businesses and people he invested his money in. At the end of his career Dr. Hamlin was a wealthy man and person of reputation in this community. For example on the last three pages appear to do with a business partnership with one "S.S. Cummings". This is probably Dr Sevarus/Severus Selin (name variously spelled, he is almost always listed with initials) Cummings (1815-1863). One page in Book 4 is headlined "The number of bushels of wheat I took from Mexican Mill in 1842". The last page shows divisions of profits between the two men. "Drs. Severus and Albert S. Cummings, came to Lewistown from Middleburg, Union County (now Snyder), about 1848. Severus practiced till his death by an accident, October 29, 1863." [ref: Ellis' History of Mifflin County]. It is unclear to us whether they were in joint medical practice or in the flour milling business together. There is also a small receipt in Book 5 from "Cuba Mills" signed by Jacob Tinker.

The last ledger has headlines of "mount Pleasant" indicating that Dr. Hamlin moved to or was practicing in Mount Pleasant Borough, located in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania. (862)

RECORDS OF THE EARLY MEDICAL CAREER OF A COUNTRY
PHYSICIAN AND SOME OF HIS FEMALE PATIENTS

4. Hyde, Dr. John Angier. Patient Accounts. Freeport, Maine:
1792-97 & 1806-1818. Freeport, Maine. Sold

Two volumes in narrow folio. 410 x 165 mm., [16 x 6 ½ inches]. 172; 268 pp. Alphabetical list of patients sewn into second volume. Manuscript in ink, very legible hand. Contemporary calf backed marbled boards and full reverse calf. Wear to bindings but sound copies in good condition.

Dr. John Angier Hyde (1771-1857) was born in Rehoboth, Massachusetts on July 10, 1771. He practiced medicine in Freeport, Maine and according to varying accounts either graduated from Boston Medical School in 1794 and received an honorary MD from the Medical School of Maine of Bowdoin College in 1831 at the age of sixty. He died February 19, 1857. Dr. Hyde was also one of the signers of an anti-statehood petition in 1819 which reflected the view that Maine should not separate from Massachusetts, of which it was then a part.

The pages of the books are numbered at the upper left with debits on the verso and contras on the rectos of each leaf. Entries are made for each patient seen and successive visits listed chronologically. A few of Dr. Hyde's more common procedures were venesections (bloodletting), tooth extraction, and "attending on a wound". His expenditures were everything from "hemming of a cravat" to purchasing gallons of rum and a penknife. The rum may have been used as anesthesia.

These two ledgers contain over twenty-five names of local women, with medical costs and payments recorded. The Widow Hannah Merrill, who appears in both ledgers, made payment with labor, ½ bushel of peas, three days doing laundry, and a piece of veal. The Widow Lillis Dennison's bills were paid for John Dennison Jr. in the amount of # 39.15. Miss Naomi Curtis, whose bills added up after a lasting sickness in 1797 spent three weeks spinning to pay for her doctor bills. Other names that appear throughout the ledgers are Widow Jane, Bacon, Widow Sarah Clough, Widow Abigail Herrington, Mary Motley, Miss Sophia Melville and Mrs. Eleanor Porter to name only a few.

Many Freeport families are also named including the Dennisons already mentioned, Coffins, Mitchells, Talbot, Soules, Rogers and Byrams. The second volume has a tipped in last name index and the original bookseller's label, Thomas Clark, Bookseller and Stationer, Portland, Maine, affixed to the inside cover.

The College of Physicians of Philadelphia holds several other account books and some manuscript material of Dr. Hyde..(860)

A MARYLAND PHYSICIAN AND SLAVE HOLDER WHO ATTENDED TO THE BOTH THE WHITE AND BLACK COMMUNITIES OF ARUNDEL COUNTY

5. Sellman, Dr. John. Patient Visits and Accounts. 1838-1849.
Anne Arundel County, Maryland. $1,000.00

Small folio. 320 x 210 mm., [13 x 8 ¼ inches]. 200 pp. Manuscript accounts in ink on lined paper. Contemporary sheep, rubbed but in good condition. Inside front flyleaf loose from binding and a bit toned with age. Highly legible and written in one hand.

Dr. John Henry Sellman was the son of the physician by the same name who fought in the American Revolution and practiced for most of his life in Cincinnati. John Jr. was born in 1806 in Anne Arundel, MD, he died there at a relatively young in 1851. He was the father of eight children and was in addition to his medical practice a farmer who grew tobacco, corn, and wheat. His farm was over 200 acres in Clinton, Maryland and he as the owner of twenty slaves.

His ledger, beautifully written and preserved lists the name of each patient, dates of their visited, prescription or medication administered, and the price charged for medical services. Most visits cost $2.00 and prescriptions were sometimes included. No surgeries were performed and most of the ailments concerned respiratory, stomach, and bowel problems alleviated by sulfur quinine, opium, and other unspecified pills. Some examples of bleeding are briefly noted.

Sarah Elliot was a frequent patient in September and October of 1841 and Dr. Sellman visited her nearly every day during this two-month period. Mrs. Elizabeth Davis probably suffered from tuberculosis and an epispastic was applied to her chest and doses of morphine were prescribed. Other local women under Sellman's care were Polly Burel, Sally Sanders, Ann Waters who brought her children in for vaccinations, Ellanor Knighton, Mrs. Batson "negro", and Mrs. Margaret Nicholson who suffered from night sickness.

Dr. Sellman's brothers and other family members are mentioned in his accounts; Richard Sellman, Alfred Sellman, John S. Sellman. In 1846 Richard Hardasty was charged $3.00 for the service of "extracting corn from the nose- black child" and $ 20.00 for assisting in the labor of a 'servant woman" thought to be a domestic slave..One of his frequent patients was Brig. Gen. George H. Steuart who was to gain later fame in the Gettysburg campaign. His medications included morphia, ipecac, dovers, pink root, and nitrious. William O'Hara had many pages of accounts which included his daughters and servants. Dr. Sellman apparently took patients to his home to attend to them; "Aug. 22, 1840. Medicine & attendance & nourishments for 17 days at my house. $17." Other patients included Solomon Sparrow, Capt. Hazzard, Nicholas Nicholson, Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, Augustus and Samuel Cleggett, Mrs. Sarah Elliott, David. M.C. Brogden, and many others.

See the description of the Sellman Family Papers in the Archive at the University of Maryland, which includes a short biography of Dr. Sellman and his family.

Small 8vo. 190 x 135 mm., [7 ½ x 5 ½ inches]. Manuscript in ink. 284 pp., plus loose scraps & receipts; one signed by Samuel Boardman. Contemporary calf ledger, with alphabetical index in the front. Very good in highly legible hand.

A particularly nice account book from Rutland, Vermont documenting the business accounts and customer accounts of Samuel Boardman (1820-1888), prosperous farmer and purveyor of food stuff to his community. The accounts are prepared with care and provide a detailed and informative insight into the local trade, its production, associated costs, and the various business that made up the economy

The names of numerous women appears throughout the ledger many for purchases and others for good or services delivered. Also a number of women, probably tutors and house staff are paid for services. Included are Mrs. T. McLaughlin who was paid in trade $36.00 for 13 yards of silk. Mrs. Sharon Capman, Miss Penfield (probably a tutor), Mary Castleton, Mrs. Curtiss, Miss I. E. Brisbee, and Mary Faraher, to name only a few listed throughout the ledger.

Samuel Boardman was the son of Elijah Boardman, a deacon of the Congregational Church in Rutland. His grandfather was also a Congregationalist deacon. He and his wife, Grata Ashley, had five children and four pages of these accounts are devoted to a genealogical record which includes a chronology of travel for several of his sons who went west to California. The children were well educated, and the accounts show tuition to Manchester Burr Seminary and Cooperstown, New York, Seminary.

There are also a few pages entitled "Bills for Music," apparently music lessons for the children. Boardman appears to have also been a clerk of the school district since he includes some accounting for that; he pays himself $10 for services as clerk. The remaining pages are household expenses and income from the farm, including the sale of beef and other farm animals. The Boardman's were breeders of merino sheep and also sold mutton. (878)

WEAVER'S FARM AND THE WOMEN WHO FREQUENTED HIS STORE

7. Weaver, Isaac. Manuscript Account Book, written in both German & English, 1825-1838. $ 750.00

Folio. 320 x 200 mm., [12 $\frac{3}{4}$ x 7 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches]. 36pp. Contemporary decorative wallpaper cover with showing wear at edges and spine; large piece of decorative paper worn away on upper wrappers. Paper stock brown with age, first two preliminary pages torn with loss of paper and text. Inside flyleaf in pencil "Samuel Weaver". Inside back cover is written the names of towns near Lancaster and arithmetic calculations.

With faults a sound and legible manuscript account book. Isaac Weaver, 1800-1866, probably the usband of Abigail Price, kept accounts for his farm near Adamstown in Lancaster that showed dealings in cotton, wool, half-linen, ticking, and yarn. He also worked in the fields, made hay, cut fruit, and baked bread. The ledger includes personal expenses for foodstuffs, butter, lard, and other household goods.

It includes the names of many local women who had accounts with the farm store. Mary Norden, Susanna Grub, Mary Hillefner, Anny Bair, Mary High, Susanna Showalter, Katherine High, and Magdalena Shirk all held accounts and paid balances due to Isaac Weaver. Also mentioned, among others, are Samuel Martin, Francis Weaver, Henry Martin the Miller, Christian Wenger, John Showalter, and John Houder.

The names indicate that this account book may refer to the settlement known as 'Weaverland' in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. A cemetery there contains "the mortal remains of the first white settlers of the beautiful vale known and remembered as 'Weber's Thal,' 'Weaver's Dale,' now Weaverland after the organization of the first Mennonite congregation by that name in 1730."

The Weaver families occupied more than 400 acres much of which remained vested in the lineal family members well into the 20th century. Names of customers include John Shirk, David Shirk and other members of the Shirk family, relatives of Peter Shirk, the first known resident preacher at Weaverland. (532)

MERCANTILE LEDGERS

IMPORTS & EXPORTS FROM NEW YORK TO THE WEST INDIES: ACCOUNTS OF ELIZABETH HEYLIGER ARE RECORDED

8. Commercial Shipping.. Mercantile Ledger Recording Activities of New York's Major Export Companies. March 29, 1811 - October 14, 1813. $ 750.00

Folio. 320 x 210 mm., [13 x 8 ¼ inches]. Manuscript in ink. 110 pp. Contemporary calf backed boards; boards show some wear, spine rubbed. A few pages have pasted magazine engravings. Overall very good.

Very detailed ledger kept by a New York shipping merchant whose records document transactions by some of the City's most important companies.. A major customer was Hoffman & Glass who were charged £1159.77 in 1811 for "26 hogsheads of St.

Croix sugar sold by them at Auction". Quantities of goods also included St. Croix rum, cotton, cigars, mahogany, tobacco, "Havana sugar" and silk gloves.

A surprise account is recorded in the ledger belonging to Elizabeth Heyliger of the Dutch West Indies. She was the daughter of the trader William Heyliger, originally of Salem Massachusetts who relocated to the West Indies. In this ledger there are three postings of payments due issued to Elizabeth for $3,812.54, 2,032.90 and $ 4,826.94 over a two year period. It is not clear what the notes were for but presumably she was continuing to export good from the Indies to New York after her father passed away. It is clear that the accounts are in her name and the liabilities are her responsibility.

A major customer was Francis Markoe who grew up on St. Croix when it was part of the Danish West Indies. His Huguenot family had a sugar plantation, "Clifton Hill", and was in the sugar, molasses, and probably rum, business. One of St. Croix's major trading partners was Philadelphia, so there was much travel back and forth and several members of the family had settled there. Francis and his brother Peter were sent to Philadelphia to school and graduated together from Princeton in 1794. His New York business was Markoe, Wilbur & Scott. He also joined with a brother-in-law, Thomas Masters, in the firm of Masters & Markoe in New York.

The name Thomas Masters appears frequently in the ledger. On Jan. 22, 1813 the note was made "Bills receivable to Fred. W. Sperry from S.I. Astor for two notes at 4 and 6 months endorsed by his brother Henry Astor in payment for the Ship Lark sold to him at public auction ... for $4150."

Another regular customer was the firm of Pratt & Kintzing. Henry Pratt was born in Philadelphia, the son of a portrait painter. He began his mercantile career trading in crockery and China from his store on Water Street. Later he moved into groceries and eventually became an important shipping merchant. Abraham Kintzing was a wagon master in Philadelphia in 1791, and after 1797 became a partner of Pratt's, and continued in the firm of Pratt and Kintzing until 1812. Kintzing was a director of the Bank of North America and of the Philadelphia Insurance Company. (see their records at William L. Clements Library at The University of Michigan.)

Many ships are named in the ledger including the Ship Canawa, Superior, Sloop Maria, Ship Amanda, and the Ship Zodiac. Finely detailed and fascinating ledger which serves as a great source of study for the early nineteenth century international shipping trade. (890)

NUMEROUS WOMEN BUYERS; HOMEMAKERS AND BUSINESS WOMEN
CONTRIBUTING TO THE ECONOMY OF EXETER

9. Gardner, John & George. Ledgers and Day Books Detailing Shop Inventory and Sales from a Thriving Country Store. Exeter, N.H., 1813 – 1847 [with gaps during 1820–22, 1824, and 1834–39]. Sold

14 volumes. Including 12 narrow folio volumes 410 x 170 mm., [16 ¼ x 7 inches] of Day Books and Customer sales; and 2 large folio volumes 440 x 290 mm., [17 ½ x 11 ½ inches] of Customer Ledgers. The archive comprises about 5,800 pp. of manuscript text. Bound in full contemporary reverse calf and sheep. Very good condition. Written in very legible hand. (Exeter, N.H.) 1813–1847.

A treasure house of information on the commercial activity of Exeter, New Hampshire. Over the nearly 5,800 pages, scores of women's names are listed, detailing purchases, amount spent, monies owed and monies paid. It is apparent from the ledgers that a number of women ran businesses in Exeter, whether they managed boarding houses for students at Exeter Phillips Academy or were teachers or governesses to members of the community. They also seemed to have managed the accounts for the Exeter Female Society, and the Overseers of Exeter's Poor. These women spent hundreds and hundreds of dollars per year and were important contributors to the Exeter economy

Some of the women who purchased goods from George Gardner over the years were the Widow Hannah Sleeper, Mrs. Flanders, Miss Ann Louger, Mrs. Mary Helliburton Mrs. Mary Folson, Miss Mary Warren, Mary Hoage, Mrs. Sarah Deal, Susanne Dearborn, and Miss Mary Merrill, to name only a few.

What is revealed about the accounts is that they record business information for a thirty-five-year period, and many accounts can be traced from year to year documenting the growth, and in some cases demise of business and family enterprises. Of course most of the accounts are for local business men and their families but what jumps out is the annual purchasing power of the women of Exeter.

The Day Books and Ledgers document spending habits of local buyers, choices of commodities offered for sale, the change in the type of goods sold over the years, and the changing purchasing of women in 19th century New Hampshire. All volumes record items purchased daily by hundreds of individual clients, each with his own account number. Each page represents one day's transactions, and generally there are between fifteen and twenty transactions in a day.

The store met the dietary and household needs of Exeter citizens for two generations, supplying them with items running the gamut from corn, pork and dairy products to tobacco, nails, and oil to wine and rum. Among the most common items sold by the store were flour, butter and coffee. In addition to providing goods to the citizens of Exeter, George Gardner supplied various local institutions including, the Exeter Cotton Factory, the Town of Exeter, the Exeter Female Society, Exeter Water Company, Phillips Exeter Academy, and the Exeter Manufacturing Company.

It also appears that George Gardener acted as a quasi-bank, by making payments to local employees of the Exeter Cotton Company. This page in the Ledger lists the names of employees of the factory and their daily rate of payment. Many of the factory workers were women and their names appear in the Day Books as purchasers from the Gardner store.

A note in the description of a daguerreotype in the collection at the Boston Athenaeum reads in part; "George Gardner (1801-1857) was a financially successful businessman from Exeter, New Hampshire. He operated a general store and hardware store in Exeter and resided in a large Federal-style house in the center of town. Gardner died in Gibraltar, Spain on August 11, 1857." He succeeded his father John Gardner who entered the business in 1800 after marrying Deborah Dean, daughter of the company's founder Ward Clark Dean.

THE EARLY DAYS OF A SELF-MADE MAN'S CAREER AS DRY GOODS DEALER AND TRADER: HIS WIFE'S LEGAL BATTLE OVER HIS WILL

10. (Gilman, Nathaniel.) Account Book of a Maine Merchant. "Ledger B". (Waterville). 1799-1805: $ 750.00

Folio.310 x 195 mm., [12 ½ x 7 ½ inches]. Manuscript in ink. 263 ff. Contemporary reverse sheep; wear, tear at top of spine, but a tight and sound copy. Handwriting very legible.

Although no company name or ownership name is found in the ledger, Nathaniel Gilman's signature appears when an account is paid in full; see examples on folios 151 and 264.

This ledger, arranged chronological under name of customer shows the sale of tea, tobacco, rum, brandy, seed, indigo, India cotton, raisins, cider, bacon, snuff, chocolate, herring, and other food stuffs and household goods. Gilman did a brisk business, and this ledger is clearly one in a series, as this one is titled on the spine, with the letter "B". The contra side shows expenses such as sundries, brimstone, cash, verdigris, and so on. Numerous local residents are found as customers as well as occasionally their signatures when accounts were settled. Most prominent are the names Bela Burrill, Elisha Nye, Elizabeth Toby, Wilson Colchard, John Shannon, Barton Pollard, Asa Crosby, Moody Sanders. Elizabeth Gilman, and Elisha Hallet.

Nathaniel Gilman was born in Exeter, N.H., February 15, 1779, of Nathaniel and Sarah (Branscomb) Gilman. A natural born trader, self-reliant and intelligent, before he was of age he freighted a vessel with goods and made a trading voyage up the Kennebec. In 1802 he settled in Waterville and began business in a small way. His business increased but, more ambitious than the other traders, Gilman was not satisfied with the local traffic, which, on account of the scarcity of money was mostly barter, the exchange of dry goods and West India groceries for farm produce, lumber and fish, salmon going at 4 to 6 cents per pound. He extended his business to the West Indies and even to the coast of Africa, thus laying the foundations of the fortune which made him a millionaire at the time of his death. He was the first president of the first bank established in Waterville. Twice married, Gilman had sixteen children. The last years of his life were spent in New York, though he usually passed the summers in his house on Silver Street. He died in 1859.

See New York Times article in the April 16, 1860 edition, citing a legal case initiated by his second wife contesting the jurisdiction of Gilman's will (p.2). The widow by her council attests that the will should be governed by the rules of the State of Maine, insuring her at least one-third of the over one million dollars in assets left by the wealthy business man. CINCINNATI BUILDING SUPPLIES COMPANY:
WITH INHERITANCE INFORMATION FOR THE WIFE AND SISTERS OF
BENJAMIN STEWART

11. Green, John K. *Account book of Lumber Merchant and Mill
Owner*. Cincinnati, 1855-1870. $ 650.00

Folio. 320 x 210 mm., [8 x 13 inches]. Manuscript in ink. 335 pp. Contemporize reverse sheep, worn. and spine wear, spine separation, text intact and handwriting legible.

Business accounts of a wealthy lumber merchant in Cincinnati, Ohio during the years leading up to the Civil War. The accounts book is divided into two parts; a day book of activity between 1855 and 1857 (about 318 pages), followed by income and expense reports for Green and his family from 1861 to 1870.

Included in the ledger is an inventory and appraisal of property owned by Benjamin Stewart his wife's brother who died in 1862. There is a list of his beneficiaries and their inheritance, including, John Greene (executor), Mary Stewart, Sarah A. White, Mary Rees, Hannah B. Gano, and Jane Green. An inventory of Benjamin Stewart's holdings covers pages 382-388.

The lumber company part of the ledger documents lumber sales of plank and clear wood, the cost of flooring and other building supplies, and the price of architectural elements used in both private and commercial construction. Hundreds of local Cincinnati builders and homeowners are listed and the accounts show a thriving business. Several pages at the end show some expenses from Longview Asylum in 1867.

John K. Green (1813-1898) was the son of Marmaduke and Mary (Kesley) Green and was born in Ohio. He married Jane Stewart (1823-1914) and had at least three children. In addition to his lumber business, Green was also President of the Eagle Insurance Company, a state legislator, and a director of Longview State Hospital. It was his success in the lumber business that propelled him into the leadership positions he undertook after the Civil War.

The back inside cover shows a hand drawn plat of property- "91 18 west". This could be property holdings in Cincinnati. In the 1850s, Green also was a partner in the Ohio Stock Breeding Company. This partnership purchased many acres of land in Iowa but did not prosper. When it dissolved, Green retained 3700 acres of land in Iowa, and son, Kesley Stewart Green, moved there to take management of the land. Kesley, Iowa, is a town named after him. (895)

W. H. Smith operated a dry goods store at 110 Canal Street during the boom times in New York City. He was selling goods to the women of New York at the same time that Lord & Taylor and Brooks Bros. were establishing their growing retail businesses. Canal Street, Catherine Street and Broadway were the center of the clothing trade and William Smith carried an inventory of goods for sale that rivalled the best that the larger firms had to offer.

The entries in this ledger include the date, the amount paid for goods and the price. For example; "Sept 4th, 1831 3 muslin for shirts .35 cents" Types of goods and cloth vary from white cotton hose, Prussian shawls, calico, belt ribbon, flannel, worsted wool, English bombazine, lamb's wool, cambric, pongee, and crimson circassian" to name some of the items listed in the sales book. A handkerchief sold for 16 cents, and black worsted socks were 25 cents. Some of the more expensive items sold were garments made from English wool and merino wool, and were priced in the 10-dollar range, while Italian silk was priced around 7 dollars. Sales ranged from $11 to $58 a day.

The book has random doodling throughout though with no loss of legibility. Customers are occasionally named, such as Mr. Kellogg, Lewis W. Miller, Mrs. Durant, Mrs. Halstead, Mrs. Morris, Samuel H. Hanson and Miss Mary Ann Holbert.

A note was made of the exact date of the move to 110 Canal St, Thursday Oct 11th, 1832. A doodle on the rear flyleaf reads in part; "New York Jan 29th 1833 Sold 12 yds blk Florence after about 1/2 an hour's talking & coaxing- oh what hard work". Under that is written "I guess it was!" and "Keep me clear from Dry Goods & a scolding wife". (884)

Tall folio. 390 x 160 mm., [15 1/2 x 6 1/2 inches].. Manuscript in ink. 258 pp. Original leather backed boards with calf spine; worn but sound and attractive. Pastedowns and fly leaves filled with script and doodles.

REMARKABLE ACCOUNTING OF THE FINANCIAL ACTIVITIES OF A GENERAL STORE IN STRATFORD COUNTY, N. H.
WIDOW RUTH TEBBETTS, PROPRIETOR

13. Tebbetts, Amos & Ruth Tebbetts? Day Books & Ledgers for Goods Bought and Sold and Work Performed. Rochester, Strafford and Barrington, [New Hampshire]: 1822-1837.

$ 1,850.00

Four volumes. Folio. 410 x 160 mm., [15 ¾ x 6 inches]. Manuscript in ink. About 800 pages of text in total. Full contemporary reversed sheep, red leather labels; bindings soiled but sound and attractive. Each volume is marked in ink on the upper board with a letter, A, B, C, D to designate sequence. Paper stock a bit brown with age but in good condition and the handwriting is highly legible.

Remarkable set of financial records of a general store which records both the purchase and payment for goods and services in a “Ledger”, and a day-to-day listing of business activities in a corresponding “Day Book” for the towns of Rochester, Strafford and Barrington, New Hampshire over a fifteen-year period. In addition there is a separate 4to. accounting record documenting the costs of managing a store and building a school house in District One in Stratford in 1829. There is also another separate 4to. ledger appraising the “Estate of Amos Tebbetts” dated January 1835. Finally, there is a narrow folio alphabetical list of customer names laid into the volume “A”.

The four volumes list thousands of entries and customers names and is a veritable who's who of southeastern New Hampshire for an inclusive period of 1822 -1837. Both the “Ledgers” and the “Day Books” cover the same period and in combination document much of the economic life of these towns in the County of Stratford adjacent to the State of Main. The contents of the volumes list foodstuffs, animal products, building materials and tools, household goods, clothing, a lot of tobacco and rum sales and an occasional sale of gin. The Widow Ruth Tebbetts, thought to be the owner of the general store after the death of Amos, is recorded as having bought a quart of gin in 1822.

In addition to Ruth Tebbetts, the Ledger and Day Books record the names an purchases of Elizabeth Berry, Elizabeth Foss, Widow Sarah Gray, Widow Abigal Gray, Widow Charlotte Holmes, Peggy Tebbetts (Margaret), the Widow Polly Hodgdon, and many more.

Although the ownership of the volumes is not designated, in a separate part of the estate appraisal of Amos Tebbetts, there is a five-page section with the heading “Goods in the Store”. Also the name of Margaret Tebbetts, daughter of Amos and Ruth, appears on the back cover of the volume documenting the costs of the Store and the building of the school. The attribution of ownership of the store is made from these two pieces of evidence. (897)

GENERAL STORE RECORDS FROM A LUMBER TOWN ON THE PENOBSCOT RIVER

14. Wadleigh, B. P. Journal A. General Store Accounts. Old Town, Penobscot, Maine: June 1847- December 1851.
Sold

Folio. 350 x 225 mm., [14 ½ x 9 ½ inches]. Manuscript in ink. 467 pp.
Contemporary reverse sheep; some minor wear to bindings edges and tips, otherwise sound and attractive. Text block tight and handwriting very legible. The names "B.P. Wadleigh" appears on the spine label and
"E.D. Hoskins & Co." lightly stamped on the front flyleaf.

An extensive and large ledger, in excellent condition and written in a fine hand, which records the economic activity of a general store situated in Old Town, Penobscot County, Maine. Old Town was a lumber town on the Penobscot River, just south of Bangor and a center for mill work and trade. The demand for spruce and pine kept the town humming and as this ledger shows, demand for home goods and food stuffs document a thriving center of business and labor.

The accounts list the name of the customer, the goods or services rendered and the amount due. There are often notations indicating that the account was settled. Typical entries include sales of tobacco, wine, whiskey, sundries, sugar, bleached cotton, linen, silk, boots, tea, crackers, soap, molasses, bitters, suspenders, needles, buttons, pots, firkins, whips, lamps, brooms, payment for a day's work, and so on.

In addition to the names of local merchants, traders, lumbermen, and some of the companies Wadleigh sold to, are the names and purchases of numerous women in Old Town. A few of the largest buyers include Mrs. Ruth Hinkley and her daughter who purchased quantities of molasses, lard, oil, cloth and whalebone for dressmaking over this four-year period. Miss C. Harwood purchased gloves, muslin and broadcloth and rolls of paper. Miss Mary Cilley purchased silk, whale bone, hooks and eyes, and also sold items to Wadleigh. Others purchased food stuffs, household goods, and meats of many varieties.

Benjamin P. Wadleigh was listed as a trader in the 1850 census. He was the son of Ira and Theodosia (Grant) Wadleigh, and was married to Mary Ann Staples. They were members of the Universalist Samaritan Society church. He was likely in business ("E.D. Hopkins & Co.") with E(lisha).D. Hopkins who was born in 1818, in Jamestown, New York.
He was also listed in the census as a "trader".

Customer names that appear in the ledger include Wadleigh relatives
(Ira, Jesse, Moses), and surnames such as Hoskins, Nixon, Whittemore, Witt, Rowe, Getchel, Prince, Dillingham, Young, Sewall, Neal, Burnham, Spring, Black, Erskins, Hillman, Farnham, Springer, Staples, etc. The Wadleigh and Hoskins families were quite prominent in Maine in the 1850's and owned a fair amount of land. There are historical references to Ira Wadleigh as a "lumberman" and an innkeeper. (899)

WOMEN AND TRADE IN AREAS OPENED BY THE ERIE CANAL

15. Woodworth, W.C. General Store, Orchard Supplies & Outfitter's Ledger. Ulysses, New York, 1847-1850.

$ 1,500.00

Folio. 320 x 21 mm., [13 x 8 ½ inches]. Manuscript in ink. 461 pp. Contemporary reverse sheep binding; worn but sound. Text block tight and handwriting very legible.

This is an unusually comprehensive ledger belonging to the W.C. Woodworth Company of Ulysses, New York. The company seems to have operated a general store in the town of Ulysses (currently known as Trumansburg) but apparently engaged in shipping fruit and vegetables across the Northeastern United States. The ledger begins with an alphabetical index to the names of the hundreds of customers served by the Woodworth Company. The remainder of the book is comprised of tens of thousands of entries recording products sold, the customers to whom they were sold, the price they were sold for, and the date that the transaction took place.

Among the numerous companies and farms that Woodworth supplied are nearly 40 accounts of local women who established credit for goods purchased. Many of the accounts ongoing and notes at the bottom of pages show that balances are transferred to the next ledger suggesting a continued business relationship between the women purchasers and Woodworth's General Store. The number of transactions and amounts carried forward also suggest that these women customers may have been running boarding house, worked as teacher or governesses, cooks, seamstresses, as well as homemakers.

While the Woodworth Company specialized in the sale of produce, the general store sold a remarkable array of items. Included in the list of items in this ledger are foodstuffs such as molasses, sugar, ginger, alcohol, mackerel, pepper, starch, salt, codfish, tea, veal, butter, coffee, corn, eggs, rice, and raisins, to name but a portion. Selling even better than foodstuffs were household items including nails, screws, various tools, oil, shingles, candles, lead, razor straps, brushes, powder & shot, paint, knives, rawhide, and pencils. Again, this list represents but a sample of goods sold by Woodworth. The store carried a massive stock of various types of cloth, ribbons, buttons, and sewing needs. Perhaps the most commonly sold item was tobacco.

The Woodworth store must have been a welcome outpost in a relatively unsettled area of backwoods New York, providing a selection of items rivaling the busy markets of New York City. This vast selection of products was doubtlessly enabled by the construction of the New York Canal System, with the Seneca Canal running very near to the Town of Ulysses.

Evidence of the canal exists in the ledger with several pages of entries devoted to sales made to various canal boats. Among the boats mentioned is the W.C. Woodworth, which was obviously a company boat and the barge, Ulysses. The records show the cost of operating a canal boat and hauling fees for moving fruits and vegetables to market. A receipt for the construction of the vessel is included in the ledger.

One of Woodworth's important customers was James Monroe Mattison owner of the Jacksonville Nursery established in Ulysses in 1845. It was a newly developing business during the period when the region was beginning to cultivate vast fruit orchards. His advertisements mentioned the excellent area transportation for facilitating the prompt delivery of orders for stock. It is almost certain that the Woodworth Company was involved in this delivery process.

Among the largest wholesale produce concerns of Western New York after the Civil War was L.G. Loomis & Son of Victor, New York. Woodworth's ledger records early dealings with the Loomis firm, including some substantial purchased in 1847. In 1882 Loomis would form a partnership with W.C. Woodworth, in the same line of business, the firm being called Loomis & Woodworth, with offices at the town of Victor. On August 1st, 1907, Mr. Woodworth retired, and Mr. Loomis admitted his son, Leslie George, Jr., to membership in the firm, since known as L.G. Loomis & Son. (896)

LEGAL, FINANCIAL & GOVERNMENTAL CASE BOOKS AND REPORTS

WOMEN AND MEN OF UNION COUNTY HAVE THEIR DAY IN COURT

16. Reifsnnyder, John. Docket Book of Justice of the Peace. "John Reifsnnyder. Docket no.1." August 7, 1820 - August 14, 1823.
$ 1,750.00

Dated and numbered 1-629 docket entries for Union County, Pennsylvania, which contain about three entries per page, many of which involve Pennsylvania Germans.

The plaintiffs and defendant are named, and the judgments and payments entered. Often, the entry contains the signature of one of the parties acknowledging receipt of monies. Many cases concern debts owed. A typical entry: "No. 47 1821. Daniel Stetler vs Andrew Hendrix. Summons debt not exceeding 100 dollars Book amount for Mending a Plough for defendant." The entry further gives the amounts owed, court costs, the execution dates, etc.

Magdalena Mengs appears in court three times attempted to be paid for a loan to Jacob, George and Peter Lenig. Catherine Shamory complained that Charles Swartz did not pay for a shirt she made and $ 1.25 was outstanding. Jacob Spies charged Mary Moyer (Widow) for not paying for the wood he chopped. She attended court, confirmed that the $2.00 was due and finally paid it off two years later. Many other plaintiffs and defendants were women from Union County.

Tall folio. 320 x 200 mm., [13 x 8 inches]. Manuscript in ink. 278 pp. Includes 13 loose notes, filled forms, some anchored with common pins. Contemporary calf backed boards, well worn, spine separating, slight fading; paper stock browning and a bit stained by sound and the handwriting is highly legible.

Some entries are quite detailed, such as a (contemporarily familiar) dispute between Jacob Henz and Christian Boyer over "a demand of $250 for the Carpenter work of defendant's house." The defendant stated that he had "bargained with the plaintiff for the said carpenter work of said house for $150 but was willing to allow him thirty dollars more." The case was referred by Michael Harkenberg, Jacob Shadle, and Jacob Houseward and finally decided in favor of the defendant. Other cases involve "balance on boot money in a trade for a gun," "an amount for earth to make earthenware" (pottery), and Capt. John Lebning's suit over calfskin for drum heads. The dispute evidence shows occupations for many of the town's settlers, information not available in early censuses.

The location appears to be Freeburg, Union County, Pennsylvania, from references in several entries. Union County is now Snyder County which was settled in the 1740's by Pennsylvania Germans from Berks and Lancaster Counties and became an independent political unit in 1855. The Reifsnymders were early settlers in the area. Another frequent signatory in the book is Peter Wolf, either another Justice of the Peace or an assistant. (894)

Richards, John. Docket Book of Justice of the Peace. Montgomery
County, Pennsylvania, March 14, 1809 - January 18, 1815.
$ 2,000.00

Tall folio. 320 x 195 mm. [13 x 8 inches]. Manuscript in ink. 215 pp.
Alphabetical index of cases, plus some official printed forms and 15 loose notes and receipts. Contemporary calf backed boards, spine separated, front board detached; text block brown with age; deep stain to first 20 pages of the index, some other light staining, but still highly legible.
With faults a highly readable and information manuscript document.

Dated docket entries for Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, which contain about two cases per page, many of which involve Pennsylvania Germans. The plaintiffs and defendant are named, and the judgments and payments entered. Often, the entry contains the signature of one of the parties acknowledging receipt of monies. Many cases concern debts owed. A typical entry: "Feb 12, 1810. Michael Bartman vs. Frederick Buck. Book debts £ 2.18.7 1/2. Justice fees £ 2.3, Judgment by confession in favor of the pltf for the above debts and costs." Another example for "Feb 20th Rudolph Harley sp. Bail. May 6th pd John Richards six dollars, 29th ditto paid seventeen shillings & nine pence.
Credited to judgment obtained by Samuel Schoch against Michael Bartman 5th docket pa. 293".

Another cases describes accusations by Maria Hartranft against John Yerger. The depositions reads:

"The examination of Maria Hartranft of Douglass Township. Single woman taken an Oath before me, John Richards the thirteenth day of February 1810. Who saith that on or about the middle of November last feast and at several times before and since a certain John Yerger of the same place, Cordwainer, had Carnal Knowledge of her body, whereby [?] this examinant, is now big with Child and that the said John Yerger, is the father of the said Child, and further saith not."

On April 27, 1810, a case between Catharine Liebenguth vs William Birns was also heard by Mr. Richards.

"On a Complaint that the said William this day on the Road between Pottstown, and Glasgow Forge behav'd himself in an unbecoming and improper Manner, by Scaring her horse by which her life was endangered. Parties appeared and by the Testimony it appeared that the charge was not founded and unsupported. Judg't the action was dismissed, and her Father Mathias Liebenguth pad the cost to J. R."

Other women involved in court case include Elizabeth Esterline,
Elizabeth Liebenguth (four times for non-payment of debt) Mary Decker

(assault and battery on the body of Abraham Mowser), Catherine Decker, Maria Hartranth (testifying that John Yeager had carnal knowledge of her body resulting in pregnancy; Yeager says not); Elizabeth Reissnyder, Elizabeth Richtstine, Susannah Romfeld, Eliz. Shiner (a dispute over inheritance), Catherine Stettler, and Magdalena Swenck,

The book contains about 400 entries, many with details of accusations, defense and judgements and provides an important view of a communities legal issues and the way justice was rendered.

Although the book has no title-page, based on receipts and papers contained therein, authorship is likely the John Richards (1753-1822) who was the brother of Matthias Richards. Born in New Hanover, Philadelphia County, Pa., April 18, 1753, he was educated under private tutors, served as magistrate during the Revolutionary War, appointed justice of the peace for Philadelphia County June 6, 1777, and served until his death. He was the judge of the court of common pleas for Montgomery County in 1784. Richards was a delegate to the Federal Constitutional Convention in 1787 and elected as a Republican to the Fourth Congress (March 4, 1795-March 3, 1797). He was a member of Pennsylvania State Senate from 1801 to 1807. In 1809 he was elected Justice of the Peace. By trade Richards was an ironmaster and engaged in mercantile and agricultural pursuits; He died in New Hanover, PA., November 13, 1822; interment in Faulkner Swamp (Lutheran) Church Cemetery . INCLUDING A CASE INVOLVING THE TUSCARORA NATION AND AN EXHUMATION AND AUTOPSY TO DETERMINE THE CAUSE OF DEATH

18. Smith, James (County Clerk?). Court Records of Lewiston.
Niagara County. 1835-42; 1854-1856. $ 1,500.00

Two volumes. Folio ledgers. 340 x 210 mm., [132 ½ x 8 ¼ inches].; 310 x 205 mm., [8 x 12 ½]. Manuscript in ink. 238 pp.; 213 pp. Marbled board covers, calf spine; boards and spine show significant wear; sewing of the text block in the second volume is weak but intact; first two pages missing. Records written in a small, tight hand, yet legible; some fading of the ink to a number of pages; paper brown with age and fragile at the edges. The name "James Smith Esq" in pencil on inside front cover of the second volume; no other .

Chronological record of court proceedings in the town of Lewiston in Niagara County, New York. Records include detailed descriptions of complaints, appeals, judgements and often fines and penalties as well as the names of the defendants, plaintiffs, and the date of the court case. The amount of information on the people of Lewiston, their employment, legal entanglements, and relations with other town residents is remarkable in its scope and detail. Niagara County is in the extreme western part of the New York State on Lake Ontario and the border with Ontario, Canada. Between the year 1830 and 1860 the population grew from 1500 to about 3300 residence and the town of Lewiston, the most prosperous in the county, was a center of fruit and vegetables farming and the cultivation of grapes and the wine industry in New York State.

A typical case reads as follows:

"William Hotchkiss agst. Armon McNichol. on the affidavit of the pltf issued warrant against the deft this 6th April 1855. the deft in court arrested by J T Beardsley Jun. The pltf complained against the deft for taking and carrying away a quantity of sand & gravel from a certain lot the property of the pltf in the village of Lewiston said County the 6th day of April to his damage of $56".

In a case of the People vs Rachel Roe, Roe is accused of and convicted in the theft of a silver watch. She was sentenced to six months confinement in the county jail.

A case on page 16 of the second volume is described as follows: "The people of the State of New York vs a Person Known" involves a summons to "view the body of Elijah Johnson a Tunoroia (Tuscarora?) Indian. The court was held at the Indian Meeting House and the exhumed body was examined as part of an inquest into his death- apparently a murder. After examining the evidence the court determined that

"Johnson was struck a blow on the left side of his head while standing on the suspension bridge in Lewiston by the hand of some person unknown."

The Tuscarora "hemp gatherers" or "Shirt-Wearing People" are a Native American tribe and First Nations band government of the Iroquoian-language family, with members today in North Carolina, New York, and Canada. They coalesced as a people around the Great Lakes, likely about the same time as the rise of the Five Nations of the historic Iroquois Confederacy, also Iroquoian-speaking and based then in present-day New York.

It is also possible that the recorder was trying to spell "Sequoia" since the Five Nation Indian Alliance in the area was made up of the tribes of the Mohawk, Seneca, Onondaga, Oneida and Cayuga. Each had their designated function. The Senecas were the protectors of the land and waterway rights of the Niagara River, Lake Erie and Ontario. The Senecas were the "Keepers of the Western Door."

There are usually two to three court entries per page making this a record of potentially more than 400 cases. Occasionally the signature of the plaintiff appears to affirm that damages have been received. A few cases show "The People" as plaintiff where charges are similar to breach of the peace or false promise. The New York State Register of 1843 shows a James Smith as a judge in Lewiston. (887)

A THIRTY-YEAR RECORD OF MINUTES, PROCLAMATIONS, EXPENDITURES AND VOTE TABULATIONS OF AN OHIO: INCLUDING INDENTURES INITIATED BY LOCAL WOMEN AND THEIR SONS

19. Warner, John. Country Clerk. Official Records of Town Council. March 1846. December 12, 1877. Vernon Township, Richland County, Ohio, City. $ 1,250.00

Folio. 310 x 200 mm., [13 x 8 inches]. Manuscript in ink. 500 pp., (missing the first 3 pages). Contemporary calf, well worn, spine separating. Paper stock a bit brown with age; final 30 pages and lower board damaged by water. With faults a legible and useful history of Vernon, Ohio.

Valuable compilation of early records for the town of Vernon, Ohio, which was organized March 9, 1825, out of the north half of Sandusky, and was, at this time, six miles square. The population in 1840 was about one thousand. After 1845, Vernon became part of Crawford County and is well watered by the tributaries of the Sandusky River.

This 'clerk's book' contains records of indenture, cattle ear marks, election results, and an alphabetized census of "white male persons subject to perform military duties," taken in 1844. In addition there are local ordinances, testimonials and depositions on town issues, records of road condition and expenditures to maintain them, land conveyances, surety bonds and trustee services, and miscellaneous town financial business as recorded by the town clerk.

In addition to the records of town business and there are recorded a number of indentures from local women binding their sons to local farmers to learn the business of running a farm. In March of 1841, Mary Ann Nicolin is recorded as making an indenture for her son John the Baptist Nicolin age seven, with Thomas Roe for four years. The contract outlines the terms of the indenture and mentoring that John the Baptist Nicolin will receive from Mr. Roe. Another example is an indenture between Barbara Brown and Peter Bauer, binding her son age seven to Bauer until he reaches the age eighteen. One can only guess what the situation was that compelled Mrs. Brown to apprentice her boy for eleven years to local farmer to learn the trade of farming.

John Warner and George Keller were town clerks, both coming from York County, Pennsylvania in 1837, as did several of the other early settlers to Vernon. Names of dozens of other early settlers who populated Crawford County are found in these records, with information on their lively hoods and positions in society. "This section of country presents the evidence of real prosperity. It is inhabited largely by industrious, energetic and hardy people, who came from Pennsylvania, Maryland and other Middle States." MISCELLANEOUS LEDGERS

NELLIE GALE LAMENTS HER MOTHER'S DEATH HAND WRITTEN LYRICS, PASTED-IN PRINTED SONG SHEETS, AND NEWSPAPER CLIPPINGS OF SONGS

20. Gale, Nellie E. Scrap Books & Accounts. American Song Sheets, Popular Music Lyrics. Keene, New Hampshire, 1870-1885.
$ 600.00

Folio. 330 x 210 mm., [13 x 8 ½ inches]. 77 pp. of ruled paper Bound in contemporary calf backed boards over marble paper; leather joints and edges worn, with loss of pieces of spine; embossed stamp and bookplate of W.H. Spalter & Co., Bookseller & Stationers, Keene, N. H.

Scrapbook of late 19th century American popular music including manuscript lyrics (18 songs), pasted-in printed broadside song sheet (22 song), lyrics clipped from newspapers laid-in (7 songs), and one manuscript lyric torn from another ledger and laid-in. The scrapbook was formerly an account book for a “Saloon”, with most of the leaves now pasted over with song sheets or erasure of accounting information overwritten by manuscript lyrics. This might suggests that the songs may have been part of the entertainment offered to customers by the New Hampshire saloon keeper.

The broadside song sheets, mostly printed by Henry J. Wehman, the song publisher in New York, measure 9 ½ x 5 ½ inches and each lyric is printed on a buff-colored paper and set within a decorative typographical border. The manuscript lyrics are written in blue, red, and black ink and in most cases are highly legible.

The song titles include Roll on Silver Moon, A Boy's Best Friend, I Want to See the Cotton Fields, and The White Pilgrim. But for the most part, the lyrics focus on songs about “Mother” including Whisper Softly, Mother's Dying, Save My Mother's Picture from the Sale, What is Home without a Mother?, I'm Lonely Since My Mother Died, Why Did They Dig Ma's Grave so Deep?, eighteen songs dedicated in all.

This scrapbook was kept by New Hampshire resident Nellie E. Gale (1837-1905), whose name appears written in ink on many of the song sheets. She is probably Nellie Ellen Dodge Gale of Walpole, wife of Amos, a farmer. She married her first husband Charles C. Rich of Stoughton Mass. In 1858 and was widowed. The focus on songs dedicated to 'Mother' may be the result of the death of Nellie's mother Fanny Graves Dodge in February 1885, when this scrapbook appears to be put together. (756)

Whisper Softly, Mother's Dying

The Words and Music of this Song will be sent to any address, post-paid, on receipt of 40 cents, by H. J. Wehman, P. O. Box 1823, New York City. Catalogue of Songs, Books, Novelties, &c., sent free.

Whisper softly, mother's dying,
Soon she'll close her loving eyes;
Angels wait to bear her gently
To her home beyond the skies;
Kiss her lips, for soon she'll leave us—
Mother, clasp me to your breast,
As you did in days of childhood,
When you sang your child to rest.

Chorus.

Whisper softly, mother's dying,
Soon she'll close her loving eyes;
Angels wait to bear her gently
To her home beyond the skies.

Whisper softly, mother's dying,
Soon we'll miss the truest love,
And we'll miss the voice so loving,
When her spirit's flown above.
Mother, ask the shining angels,
Ask them if you cannot stay;
Who will care for us in sorrow,
When they've taken you away.—Chorus.

Whisper softly, mother's dying,
And she'll tell us not to weep;
She'll watch o'er and protect us,
Through the night when we're asleep.
Darling mother, guide our footsteps,
Be with us from day to day;
Hark! the angels now are calling—
Mother dear, has passed away.—Chorus.

I Shall Never be Happy Again.

AS SUNG BY MISS MOLLIE WILSON.

The Music of this Song can be had of Henry J. Wehman, Song Publisher, No. 50 Chatham St., New York, or will be sent to any address, post-paid, on receipt of 40 cents in postage stamps.

My life, like a flower, has been nipp'd in the bud;
My heart—if I own such a thing—
By a man, cruel man, has been broken in bits,
But still to his false one I cling.
I loved him, alas! but he didn't love me—
The feeling is hard to explain—
I try to throw care to the wind, but I feel
I shall never be happy again.

CHORUS.

I shall never be happy again,
I shall never be happy again;
Till I've gained your good graces
And kissed all the men's faces,
I shall never be happy again.

I feel as though water was poured down my back,
Or a giant had trod on my corn,
I think till I'm vested that each moment's my best,
He caused me to feel so forlorn.
I oft start to cry, and fancy I'll die,
Although I don't feel any pain;
Till Tom cats won't fight, or rake out at night
I shall never be happy again.

CHORUS.

I shall never be happy again,
I shall never be happy again;
Till Sara Bernhardt
Shall be cast for my part,
I shall never be happy again.

My life, like a flower, has been nipp'd in the bud,
My heart—if I own such a thing—
By woman, fair woman's been broken in bits,
But still to his fair one I cling.
I loved her, alas! but she didn't love me,
The feeling is hard to explain.
I try to throw care to the wind, but I feel
I shall never be happy again.

CHORUS.

I shall never be happy again,
I shall never be happy again;
Till girls in their teens
Don't know what love means,
I shall never be happy again.

Her pa was a merchant in ruffles and shirtings;
Her mother, a worthy old dame,
Very often would say, in a jocular way,
Our Lucy will soon change her name.
Alas! she has changed it, but it was not for mine—
The thought of it drives me insane;
And till prisoners in jail are all out on bail,
I shall never be happy again.

CHORUS.

I shall never be happy again,
I shall never be happy again;
Till the corns on my toes
Grow bare on my nose,
I shall never be happy again.

A VERY SPECIAL BOOK OF FAMILY ACCOUNTS

RECORDS OF A CARPENTER FATHER AND HIS SON THE MECHANICAL ENGINEER

21. Kurtz, Daniel and William. Mechanical Engineer's Account Book. Buffalo, New York, 1876-1925. $ 900.00

Folio. 275 x 225 mm., [11 x 9 inches]. Manuscript in ink and pencil. 222 pp. (pp. 115 – 322). including a partial alphabetical index of customers. Cover well worn, spine missing; text clean and highly legible.

Financial records of a Pennsylvania Dutch family of engineers and contractors who worked in Pennsylvania and New York. The first part of this ledger was likely kept by Daniel Kurtz, who was born in in 1825, in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. A carpenter, he had a wife Elizabeth and six children including William, born in 1858. Daniel's accounts primarily show the cost of materials and hours spent on job sites. It is basically a labor and materials price guide for a late 19th century skilled carpenter. Daniel's name appears in the 1900 census as living in Mt. Pleasant New York and notes his profession as mechanical engineer.

Some of Daniel's customers were women who owned property in Buffalo including Grace Styleer, Mrs. Nevins of Chestnut Street, Mrs. Shirk, Mrs. Barr and Mrs. Belle. His work was mostly household repair and fixing furniture. He was paid for time and materials. He also must have owned rooming house as he was paid monthly by Mrs. Alice Frick for board.

After about 1879, the bulk of the ledger was kept by Daniel's son, William B. Kurtz, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1858. He had a wife Mary, daughter Grace, and a son LeRoy whose name appears in the ledger.

William's account show much greater detail in the jobs he worked on and include long prose descriptions of the design, materials, and labor that would be required to complete the job. For example for a job building a house on Norton Street in Belmont, N.Y., William writes extensively about the drawings required for the job, the excavation, the masonry, the lath and plaster to be applied, the nature of the plumbing system, carpentry, sheathing, shingles, siding, exterior work, flooring, wains coating, the choice of doors and window, the cellar equipment, and painting and varnishing of both the interior and exterior.

Other addresses in Buffalo include 234 Virginia Street, a house on Grant Avenue, Whitney Place, and one in Bound Brook. The names of Francis Hershey, J.A. Keepers, Jacob Reininger, Crowell Manufacturing, and William H. Kennard are cited. The specifications for 324 Virginia Street in Buffalo are even more extensive than the specifications for the house in Belmont. Several inventories of Kurtz's personal property and assets also appear in the ledger.

Some of the property that William owned were sold to local women and he held the mortgages which were paid monthly. Kate Chamberlain had a mortgage with William of $3,200 at 6 per cent interest. Mrs. Beatrice Rankin had a $ 6,500 mortgage at 5per cent, and Mrs. Anna Impallario and Mrs. Sara Rose also had mortgages with William for property they purchased from him in Buffalo. (880)

PERSONAL AND BUSINESS ACCOUNTS OF A MECHANIC FROM TROY, NEW YORK

22. Rand, Theodore C.. Stove Dealer's Ledger. Troy, New York,
1848-53. $ 350.00

4to. 260 x 210 mm. [10 ¼ x 7 ¾ inches]. Manuscript in ink. 179 pp. Contemporary reverse calf binding, black leather labels on spine, embossed border design on boards; hinges broken and the text block is held to binding by sewing.

This ledger is the financial record of Theodore C. Rand, a dealer in cast iron stoves from Troy, New York. The first pages of the book contain an alphabetical index of nearly 200 of Rand's clients including scores of women. The index is followed by a chronological listing of financial transactions. These include both income Rand received for selling, installing, or repairing stoves and personal and business expenses. Entries typically include the date of the transaction, the item being sold or purchased, the name of the client, and the amount of the transaction. Rand dealt in a variety of stoves including no. 2 stoves, no. 4 stoves, country stoves, blacking stoves, and box stoves.

The majority of Rand's income was derived from repairing stoves. Parts serviced include castings, rods, handles, dampers, and pump handles. Rand occasionally repaired items not directly related to stoves such as a machine at a tin shop (though no description of the machine is given). The book lists a wide variety of expenses related to Rand's business including iron bands, "ball rods", common iron, bolts, and wire. Among Rand's personal expenses is a tea kettles, oil, boots, coal, and wood. Also among Rand's expenses are a number of foodstuffs including butter, lamb, rye, and eggs.

The ledger includes the names of nearly forty women, local customers who purchased good or had stoves fixed, established credit, paid off bills over time and contributed greatly to the success of Mr. Rand's business. A few of the names that appear are Mrs. Maria Allen, Marth Blandford, Mrs. J. G. Derry, Mrs. P. Higgins, Abigail Johnson, Mrs. E. G Kidder and her daughter Ann, Mrs. Columbus Orcutt and Miss Augusta Orcutt, Mary Smith, Mathilda White, and Mrs. George Wilder.

Cast iron stoves were first produced in quantity in the late 1720's. These first stoves were of German design and were called Five-plate or Jamb stoves. By the 1740's, six-plate stoves, also called close stoves were being made. In 1740, Benjamin Franklin improved upon the design of stoves by creating the "Pennsylvania Fireplace". Around 1760, ten-plate stoves, similar to, but larger than, six-plate stoves were made having four more plates that form an oven and two hinged doors. Opening on either side, smoke passed around the ends of the oven and out a pipe. This is the likely genesis of all cook stoves. As early as 1820's the Step-top cook stove design was seen. Six-plate stoves made in the nineteenth century were commonly called box stoves. They are similar in design to the six-plate stoves of the eighteenth century but are lighter and more finely cast because of advancements in technology.

Regional foundries manufactured wood-fueled cookstoves by the early 1800s, modeling their new introductions after a variety of mid-1700s stoves used primarily for heat. The pieces were welcomed by American cooks mainly dependent on open hearths and masonry ovens, and hundreds of small stove manufacturers across the country began to turn out stoves that were then sold under a variety of brand names, often unique to the foundry that produced them. (881)

WITNESSING HIS SISTER'S DEATH TO SICKNESS
& TRYING TO ESTABLISH HIMSELF IN THE BOOK TRADE

23. Whale, William. Manuscript Account Book and Diary. New York, Philadelphia, and Troy, 1824-25. $ 950.00

8vo. 220 x 1450 mm., [8 ¾ x 5 ½ inches]. About 70 pp. of text. Bound in reverse calf; spine worn joints cracked, rubbed and fragile, but holding together. William Whale name and the date 1824 is written in ink on upper board.

Interesting diary and account book of the bookseller and bookbinder William Whale for the years 1824-25. His quest to find a trade led him to bounce between New York, Philadelphia, and Troy and the ledger documents the trials and tribulations of a young man trying to establish himself in a trade. The manuscript begins with travels from New York City to Philadelphia to visit his dying sister. It describes in some detail her illness and death. He writes about his attempt to be release from his apprenticeship in New York, and his travels back to Philadelphia to retrieve his belongs which he found looted by his brother-in-law. He retreated back to New York and then on to Troy, New York where he may have had family. This part of the diary is comprised of 8 pages.

The ledger continues with 22 pages of accounts, including income and expenditures; 6 pages on the sales of lottery tickets; 4 pages about his loan from his sister's husband Dupouy, and a list of living expenses. This is followed by 26 pages of an alphabetical listing of about 125 books organized by author's name, mostly in the field of literature. These records could be from his time in Troy.

Apparently, Whale did bookbinding as well as bookselling while in New York and there are 3 pages of manuscript listing the binding work he did for William Gilley, the New York bookseller and publisher. The remainder are short entries that deal with a letter to an editor, his arrival in Philadelphia, being witness to the death of 75 rats on the corner of Decatur Street, an account of a Black Man mash his fingers in a door, and a dozen or so pages of accounts.

Whale is known to have married Maria Young in 1827 and there is some evidence that he sent letters to M. Young while in Philadelphia caring for his sister. In A Register of the New York City Book Trades, 1821-42, William Whale is cited as a bookseller and lists addresses at 61 Bowery, 68 Sullivan Street (1827), and 55 Bowery for 1828 and 1829 where he opened a theatrical book shop.
